CLAMMERS TO ORGANIZE.

Local Labor Leader Assisting Ipswich Diggers to Come Together.

At a meeting of the clammers of Ipswich which was held this week, steps were taken to effect the formation of a local branch of the Fish-handlers union. There were present at the meeting nearly 50 of the local clammers, a temporary organization being effected, and initial dues being paid by many of those who express a desire to become members. The next meeting will be held tomorrow night at which time Antone A. Silva of this city, a well known labor organizer, will be present, and will assist in the organization of this branch. It is understood to be the object of those who are joining the union to attempt to market local clams direct, doing away as far as possible with all middle men.

AMBERGRIS.

The Part It Plays in the Production of Costly Perfumes.

Ambergris, says an exchange, is supposed to be a morbid secretion of the liver of the spermaceti whale, found floating or washed ashore. It is a little lighter than water and might easily be taken for a piece of the bark of a tree. On examination, however, it is found to be of a waxy nature, streaked with gray, yellow and black and emitting a peculiar aromatic odor. It fuses at 140 to 150 degrees F. and at a higher temperature gives out a white smoke, which condenses into a crystalline fatty matter.

It is found in all sizes, from a pound up to 20 or 30, but occasionally pieces weighing 100 or 200 pounds are found in whales.

Ambergris has been known from an early period, some pharmacopoeias prescribing it for fevers and nervous complaints. It is sometimes mingled with the incense burned in churches and is also put in certain kinds of wine to improve the "bouquet."

But the great use of ambergris is in the manufacture of perfumery—not that its fragrance is either very powerful or pleasing, but it possesses the peculiar property of causing other ingredients to throw out their odors, making them more specific and durable.

In this respect it bears a resemblance to the use of mordants in dyeing, without which the colors would fail to become permanent; hence all the best perfumes contain ambergris, which is one reason of their costliness, and hence also the fact that "home-made" cologne, for instance, smells only of alcohol.

TWO WEEK'S WORK BROUGHT $225

Sch. George H. Lube, Capt. George H. Lube, which arrived at Boston yesterday from a two weeks' sword-fishing trip made the largest stock for that period that her skipper ever remembers a swordfisherman to have made. She stocked over $3000 and her crew will share about $225 a piece.

New Bait Concern.

Among the new corporations granted charters last week is the Boston Bait and Supply Company of Boston, capitalized for $75,000 in 750 shares of $100 each. The directors are, John Burns, Jr., president; Patrick F. Lyons, treasurer; and Patrick J. Healy.

Week's Receipts at Boston.

The total catch of groundfish landed at Boston for the week ending July 26 was 1,547,850 pounds from 48 arrivals as compared with 1,470,500 pounds from 57 arrivals for the same week of last year.

STEAM TRAWLERS ARE DOING WELL.

The bad weather of the past few weeks has seriously operated against fishing, and fish have been somewhat scarce. The trawlers, Carmania, landing at Canso and the Cambodia, landing at Port Hawkesbury, continue to land good fares weekly, which enables the dealers to keep up their local shipments and furnish employment for their staffs.

A. F. Fralick, appointed by the government to investigate fishing conditions is at Canso and is waiting an opportunity of going to the fishing grounds.

The sch. Albert J. Lutz landed 26,000 pounds of fresh halibut for the Maritime Fish corporation at Canso last Thursday.

Provincetown Fishing Notes.

Large schools of menhaden have been in the harbor and bay of late. Smelts have made their first appearance.

Mhaler Ellen Swift, Dunham, is reported with 490 barrels sperm oil and Whaler Viola with 250 barrels.

Joseph Dearborn's motor boat parted moorings and came ashore early Sunday evening during the heavy "souther," but was not damaged.

Capt. Jackson Williams was at Plymouth last week, where he is to have two boats built for his fishing business.

The non-appearance of squid is causing considerable uneasiness among the fishermen and cold storage men. Practically none of the variety known as "summer squid" have yet appeared, when usually thousands of barrels have been in these waters at this season.

The heavy wind of Monday night drove a large fleet of vessels in port and also the big fleet of porgy steamers now fishing in the bay. Twenty-one steamers were in the harbor and several more anchored off Wood End Tuesday.

Several of the dragger fleet lost nets last Monday night. Capt. William Williams had 28 nets cut off and Capt. Joseph Butler lost 15.

Sandy Point Fishing Notes.

Sch. Annie M. Parker, Capt. Forbes, called at this port last Monday for bait, but could not secure it. She sailed for eastern ports.

Sch. Jennie H. Gilbert, Capt. White, swordfishing, was in port a week ago Saturday for repairs to his engine. He has secured 25 swordfish and reports these fish plentiful on Brown's bank.

Sch. Manhasset, Capt. Van Amburg, was in port last Monday.

The Portland schooner Marjorie Turner, Capt. Colson, was in for shelter last Monday.

A small quantity of herring has been caught in the nets at Berry's Bay.

Had Poor Season.

The lobster fishery in and about the harbors of Bay of Islands, is practically a failure, and the same results are credited to Bonne Bay. The total catch around Bay of Islands is not more than equal to half that of last year, while the crustaceans are much smaller. The codfishery at Bay of Islands is also behind. Traps have practically no fish, and hook and liners not more than an average of 10 quintals.

Had Poor Success.

Sch. Mary Gleason, Capt. Devine was at Woods Harbor last week. She has been on a handline trip to the Georges, and has had a poor time. She also tried the Cape Shore grounds with little success. Three of the men, James Thorburn of Jordan Bay, and John Decker and George Hemeon of Sandy Point came home last Monday for a few days.

Fishing Fleet Movements.

Schs. Virginia, Terra Nova and Matthew S. Greer were at Liverpool, N. S., last Wednesday and cleared for fishing.

Sch. Senator Gardner arrived at Canso last Thursday and cleared for fishing.

Schs. Bohemia Arabia and Vanessa cleared from Canso last Thursday.
